Esta Telharmonic Hall Continues to Attract Great Crowds.

884

The unique entertainment at Telharmonic Hall, Broadway and Thirty-ninth street, continues to attract throngs, and the constantly changing programme appeals not only to the musical experts, but also draws the patronage of the ordinary seeker for amusement. The mysterious rendition of high standard compositions in pure tones and technically correct manner continues to astonish the patrons of the hall.

The musical are light is still the subject of wonderment to all who see it, and the newly added features—the biographic representation of the process of playing by unseen musicians, and the “building” of the tones of various familiar instruments from their very elements—have proven very attractive. Recitals are given every day and evening, including Sunday.
